
Life time membership?

Posted by pjessen - 2008/07/12 03:56

There was a life time (member for life)membership available about a year ago. There is no such option available in the membership renewal area. Was this dropped, or is it available only via direct contact? If available, how much? Hope someone will see this and reply personally or to the forum. I personally thought it was a great idea.

The lifetime membership is still available for $250.00/single member.
Matt B. just bought one and showed me his new membership card signed by Greg last night.
The membership option should be advertised more as it is a very good thing for the club and the members.

The lifetime membership is static content on the membership form which is the last page of every monthly newsletter. Maybe we should ask that web assistant to update the form on the site :ohmy: ?
